TO THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

COMES NOW WALTER RAYMOND STOCK, PETITIONER herein who makes this his Petition for Writ of Certiorari concerning The State of Texas, Respondent herein, and would respectfully show the Court as follows:

Basis for Jurisdiction

On November 5, 1999, a judgment and memorandum opinion regarding the Petitioner were issued by the Fifth District Court of Appeals at Dallas, Texas A Petition for Discretionary Review was filed by the Petitioner with the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, the state court of last resort and was refused The date of the judgment or order sought of the court of last resort to be reviewed is April 5, 2000 No motion for rehearing was made The statutory provision that confers to this jurisdiction is submitted under 28 USC Section 1257(a), as well as Rule 13 as this is a petition made from a discretionary review by the state court of last resort and is filed within 90 days after the entry of the order denying this discretionary review Rule 13(1)

UNITED STATES CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS

AMENDMENT V

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation

AMENDMENT XIV

Section 1 All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The review sought is from a State Court judgment The instance in which the issue was raised was at the level of the Court of Appeals, said Court having not complied with the Constitutional protections of due process of the law The manner in which the complaint for lack of due process was raised was by a Motion for Rehearing filed with the 5th District Court of Appeals at Dallas, Texas on November 19th, 1999, which was denied on January 5th, 1999 Petitioner's application for a Petition for Discretionary Review to the Court of Criminal Appeals of Texas, the highest Court of Review in this State, was denied on April 5th, 2000 In the Motion for Rehearing filed in the 5th District Court of Appeals of Texas at Dallas, the due process issue was raised in a six page motion submitted by Petitioner, attached in the appendix, herewith, and therein specifically, the Petitioner asserted in his Motion for Rehearing filed on November 19th, 1999, (see appendix), the following:

> In a Motion filed with this Court on October 25th, 1999, the Appellant moved to strike the Appellee's Brief for the reasons that the Appellee's brief was not timely filed within 30 days after the Appellant's brief was filed Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure at 386(b) The Appellee's deadline came and went without the Appellee's brief being filed and was in fact filed over four months late No Motion to Extend Time for the filing of the Appellee's brief was filed with this Court pursuant to the Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure at 105(b) In the Court's wholesale disregard of the Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure this Court is essentially allowing the State to thumb it's nose at applicable procedural rules, and as such the Court has taken itself out of being a neutral and detached court of law Would the Court ever allow the same flagrant disregard of procedural rules in a civil appeal? The Appellant submits that this rule breaking would never be tolerated in a civil appeal The Court has essentially assisted the State in the appeal This is significant because the Court relied on the argument set forth by the State in it's brief in most points and relied on a case submitted by the State in it's brief, ie Cotton v State, 893 SW2d 200 (TexApp-FtWorth 1995, No pet), in it's summary disposal of Point of Error No 4

Further, in the Petitioner's Motion for Rehearing at the appellate court level, the Appellant submitted:

> In the Appellant's brief filed March 15th, 1999, oral argument was requested On October 6th, 1999, this court denied the Appellant oral argument On August 25th, 1999, the Appellant filed a Motion to Strike Appellee's Brief for the reasons stated heretofore, and also filed a Motion for Published Opinion On October 29th, 1000, the court denied the Motion to Strike Appellee's Brief and gave no reason for doing so The court further denied the Motion for a Published Opinion on the basis that it was premature The case was submitted to the court on November 5th, 1999, and the case was decided the same day The Appellant was not allowed an opportunity to cure his "premature" Motion for Published Opinion This court in it's decision regarding three points of error made only findings of fact and did not rule on whether the factual matters asserted by the Appellant in his brief were allowed by law.

For these reasons, the Appellant was denied due process of law as guaranteed him by the Constitution of the United States

ARGUMENT

Quite simply, the Petitioner herein was denied his due process rights afforded him by the United States Constitution Fair play is the essence of due process Galvan v Press, 347 US 522, 530. rehearing denied 348 US 852. The Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States is to be construed liberally to carry out the purpose of the framers Strauder v State of WVa, 100 US 303, 310.The prohibition against depriving any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law extends to the actions of anyone who by virtue of public position under the state government deprives another of any rights secured by that amendment Chicago, B & QR Co v Chicago, 166 US 226, 234 The Petitioner was not afforded due process of law by the Fifth District Court of Appeals of Texas at Dallas, hereinafter called ("Court of Appeals") for it's multiple violations of procedural matters to the extent that the Court of Appeals itself became less than an impartial tribunal and more the instrument of the State and it's prosecution In the appendix presented herewith it is shown that the Petitioner was not given due and sufficient consideration by the Court of Appeals In short, the following rulings demonstrate the unfairness the Petitioner suffered They are as follows:

1. Petitioner's request for Oral Argument was denied
2. Petitioner's Motion to Strike Appellee's Brief was denied as well as Petitioner's Request for a Published Opinion

3. The unpublished Memorandum Opinion in Support of Judgment dispensed with Petitioner's appeal on the same day that it was submitted Said opinion consisted of the summary dismissal of five points of error raised by Petitioner in less than one page of substantive discussion

4. The Court of Appeals denied Appellant's Motion for Rehearing where he urged the due process violations now before the Court

In a letter from the Court of Appeals dated October Sixth, 1999, (see appendix) the Court of Appeals denied Petitioner oral argument on his appeal stating that it would "not significantly aid it in determining the legal and factual issues presented in the appeal" Although this practice is allowed under the Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure at Rule 398, this certainly is not a practice to be favored and Petitioner submits that this practice is rarely engaged in by this Honorable Court, if at all Accordingly, the Petitioner was denied the opportunity to advance his five points of error on appeal

On October 29th, 1999, the Court of Appeals denied a Motion for Published Opinion as well as a Motion to Strike the Appellee's Brief (see appendix) The Motion for Published Opinion was denied on the basis that it was premature This is significant in that the Court of Appeals decided the case on the same day that it was submitted to the Court of Appeals and did not allow the Petitioner an opportunity to "timely" urge his Motion for Published Opinion

The Motion to Strike the Appellee's Brief was likewise denied and in large measure points up the egregious nature of the Court of Appeals actions The Petitioner's brief was filed with the Court of Appeals in accordance with state rules The brief for the Respondent was not filed timely and was in fact filed approximately four and one-half months late No motion to extend time for the filing of the Respondent/Appellee's brief was filed with the Court of Appeals as is required by Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure at Rule 105 (b) Accordingly, the Respondent's brief should have been struck In the Court of Appeal's order, no reason whatsoever is given for the denial of the Motion to Strike Appellee's Brief Despite the fact that it is outside the record, this practice is allowed by the Court of Appeals on a regular basis Petitioner respectfully submits that this Court would not allow such conduct and accordingly, the Court of Appeals abandoned it's impartiality and in essence was assisting the State in it's response to the Petitioner's appeal Due process demands impartiality on the part of those who function in a judicial or quasi-judicial capacity Schweiker v McClure, 456 US 188, 195. In this case no impartiality was given the Petitioner As such, the State Court has decided an important question of federal law that has not been, but should be settled by this court, Rule 10(c) Constitutional guarantees of due process and equal protection both call for procedures in criminal trials which allow no invidious discriminations between persons and different groups of persons Griffin v Illinois, 351 US 12, 17, 76 SCt 585. rehearing denied 351 US 958. In fact, this disparate treatment of the Petitioner and the Respondent may very well raise the question of equal protection, because the state was given an advantage Id at SCt 592

Although the Petitioner requested oral argument and a published opinion, the Court of Appeals dispensed with the Petitioner's five points of error in approximately one page of text The Memorandum Opinion in Support of Judgment was apparently written by David F Farris, a Judge who was assigned to the case and not an elected member of the Court of Appeals As previously stated, this opinion was written on the same day the case was submitted to the court, which effectively precluded the Petitioner from "timely" moving for a published opinion This summary disposal of the Petitioner's appeal is indicative of the fact that no true review was given to those matters raised by the Petitioner Because some of those matters were nothing more than mere statements of fact finding, it effectively precluded the Petitioner from raising legal arguments in a Petition for Discretionary Review with the Court of Criminal Appeals of the State of Texas As previously mentioned , the Court of Appeals should have struck the brief of the State Instead, the Court actually relied on a case submitted by the State in it's opinion, and most certainly relied on their untimely brief This abhorrent lack of consideration of Petitioner's Appeal begs to be reviewed

As further insult to injury, the same assigned justice, David F Farris was assigned the Motion for Rehearing filed by the Petitioner The motion was denied without explanation

Accordingly, these issues are before the court and taken individually, each constitutes a due process violation and cumulatively constitute an egregious violation and cry out for a true review of the Petitioner's claims and reassignment to a court of appeals in Texas other than the Fifth District Court of Appeals at Dallas, Texas, and striking the state's brief because that court unfairly denied Petitioner his rights and in effect lost it's neutral and detached position as a tribunal

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Petitioner prays that this Honorable Court grant his Petition for Writ of Certiorari and hear all the issues fairly contained within and for other further general relief both at law and in equity to which Petitioner may show himself justly entitled

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Before Chief Justice Thomas and Justices Ovard and Farris

Opinion By Justice Farris

1. The Honorable David F. Farris, Former Justice, Second District Court of Appeals, Fort Worth, Texas, sitting by Assignment

Following his open plea to the court, Stock was convicted of driving while intoxicated and sentenced to ten years probation. He was ordered to serve 180 days as a condition of his probation. We overrule all of his points of error and affirm the judgment.

Stock bases his first point of the court's response to a question asked after both sides had closed and the court had sentenced Stock. We overrule point one because the record does not support Stock's complaint that the trial court refused to consider the full range of punishment.

We overrule Stock's second point because the sentence was within the proper range of punishment and there was evidence to support that punishment. See Jackson v. State, 680 S.W.2d 809, 814 (Tex.Crim.App.1984).

We overrule point three because the trial court's comment upon which the complaint is based did not cause the conditions of probation to be vague or indefinite.

We overrule point four because the authority upon which it is based, Lemon v. State, 861 S.W.2d 249 (Tex.Crim.App. 1993), is not viable precedent because of amendments to article 42.12 See Tex. Code Crim. Proc. Ann. art. 42.12 (Vernon Supp. 1999); Cotton v. State, 893 S.W.2d 200, 203-04 (Tex. App. - Fort Worth 1995, no pet.).

We overrule point five because the trial court did not order Stock to do community service while he was in jail.

The judgment is affirmed.

MOTION FOR PUBLISHED OPINION

TO THE HONORABLE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF APPEALS:

COMES NOW WALTER RAYMOND STOCK, Appellant in the above-styled and numbered cause and files this his Motion For Published Opinion. This case involves and appeal of a Guilty Plea. Appellant was found guilty at trial of Driving While Intoxicated, enhanced to a felony. The Appellant has made his appeal from the Criminal District Court No. 4, of Dallas County, Texas, the Honorable John Creuzot, Judge.

I.

Appellant reasonably believes that the multiplicity of issues raised in this case, many of which are novel, would be excellent opportunity for this court to set guidelines for practitioners and courts in the future and he respectfully requests that this case be published for authoritative value.

WHEREFORE PREMISED CONSIDERED, Appellant Prays this Honorable Court publish this opinion as an authoritative source for the use as guidance by our legal system in future similar cases.

MOTION TO STRIKE APPELLEE'S BRIEF

TO THE HONORABLE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF APPEALS:

COMES NOW WALTER RAYMOND STOCK, Appellant in the above-styled and number cause and files this his Motion to Strike Appellee's Brief. This is an appeal of a Guilty Plea. Appellant was found guilty at trial of Driving While Intoxicated, enhanced to a felony. The Appellant makes his appeal from the Criminal District Court No. 4, of Dallas County, Texas, the Honorable John Creuzot, Judge.

I.

The Brief for the Appellant, Walter Raymond Stock was filed with this Court on March 15, 1999. The filing of the Appellant's Brief was timely pursuant to an order issued by this Court on January 14th, 1999, which granted the Appellant's First Motion to Extend Time for Filing Appellant's Brief. Pursuant to the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure at 38.6(b) the deadline for the filing of the Appellee's Brief was within thirty days after Appellant's brief was filed, which would mean a filing deadline of on or before or April 14th, 1999. The Appellee's filing deadline came and went without a brief being filed by the Appellee. Indeed, the brief of the Appellee was tendered to the Court on or about August 26th, 1999, approximately four and one-half (4 1/2) months late. No motion to extend time for filing of the appellee's brief was filed with this Honorable Court pursuant to Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure at 10.5(b). Without the motion to extend time for appellee's brief the brief of the Appellee should not have been accepted by this Court. Accordingly, for the reasons, the brief of the Appellee should be stricken by the Court and not considered for any purpose.

WHEREFORE PREMISED CONSIDERED, Appellant Prays this Honorable Court Strike the Brief of the Appellää, The State of Texas, and not consider same for any purpose whatsoever.

THE STATE OF TEXAS,
Appellee

An Appeal from the Criminal District Court No.4

Dallas County, Texas

F96-53402-NK

MOTION FOR REHEARING

TO THE HONORABLE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF APPEALS:

COMES NOW WALTER RAYMOND STOCK, Appellant in the above-styled and numbered cause and files this his Motion for Rehearing. This case involves an appeal of a Guilty Plea in which the Appellant was found guilty of driving while intoxicated enhanced to a felony. The Appellant made his appeal from the Criminal District Court No. 4 of Dallas County, Texas, the Honorable John Creuzot, Judge.

I.

Basis of Motion

Appellant respectfully requests a rehearing on this case because it is undersigned counsel's respectful opinion that it is obvious that the case was not adequately considered by the court when it was originally decided on November 5th, 1999, which was the same day the case was submitted to the Court. Further, because Appellant was thwarted in almost every attempt to assert his rights in this appeal, the Appellant has been deprived the due process of law.

II.

Factual Summary and Argument

The Appellant's brief in this case consisted of thirteen double spaced pages, seven of which were substantive argument. The State of Texas, Appellee, submitted a brief seventeen pages long, of which twelve pages were substantive argument. The "Memorandum Opinion" of this court dated of November 5th, 1999, is but a mere two pages long with approximately one page of substance comprising a total of approximately 234 words by the count of the Appellant's attorney. The Appellant submitted 5 points of error. By the count of the Appellant's attorney, on the average, each point of error was disposed with by the court at a mere 38 words per point of error. In regard to Points of Errors Nos. 1, 3, and 5, the court's opinion cites absolutely no law whatsoever for it's ruling, and instead makes only bald assertions of fact findings, instead of conclusions of law. The court's opinion is attached hereto as Exhibit "A".

> In regard to Point of Error No. 1 this court stated:
> "We overrule point one because the record does not support Stock's complaint that the trial court refused to consider the full range of punishment".

Nothing could be further from the truth. As submitted in the Appellant's brief the Reporter's

Record reflects at page 63 the following exchange:

> Mr Johnson: Will you consider work release?
> The Court: No. Step over there to the Bailiffs. (Emphasis added)

The record reflects that the full range of punishment was not considered and the court's finding of fact in this regard is erroneous. This mere finding of fact without reliance on statute or case law effectively precludes consideration of this point by the Court of Criminal Appeals on a petition for discretionary review. Indeed, in response to Appellant's Point of Error No. 1, the State submitted approximately four pages in response relying on numerous statutes and case law. The summary of the State's argument was (1) that the refusal to consider work release was not ripe for an appellate review: (2) that the Appellant did not show that the trial court did not consider work release as an option; (3) that the Appellant has no substantive right to have the court consider or grant work release; (4) and the denial of work release does not contravene any statutory or constitutional provisions because the punishment falls within the applicable statutory range. The Appellant respectfully requests that this court reconsider this issue and present the legal justification for the court's ruling, if any.

In Point of Error No. 2, the Appellant raised the issue of abuse of discretion but the court did not even decide that issue and wholly avoided the Appellant's complaint. The court merely stated that there was evidence to support the punishment and that the punishment was within the proper range. The response in the State's brief devoted approximately two pages of substantive argument on this point.

In regard to Point of Error No. 3, this court again made a factual conclusion that the trial court's comments did not cause the conditions of probation to be vague or indefinite. This court did not indicate the legal basis for this finding, and did not even discuss the factual assertions and the legal arguments submitted by the Appellant in it's 27 word dismissal of the point of error. It should be noted that the State's response to the Appellant's Point of Error No. 3 was over a page long of substantive argument. This point of error was not adequately considered.

In regard to Point of Error No. 5, this court's factual finding that the trial court did not order the Appellant to do community service while in jail was a mere 21 words long. In Appellant's brief it is clearly stated that the trial court, in it's written condition's of probation, required Appellant to do 160 hours of community service, but that the Judge never stated same in the hearing held on the Appellant's plea of guilty. Instead, the only direction the court made was for the Appellant to go "into the jail's chemical dependency program where you will get further treatment and all that you have learned and gathered up you can help other poor folks there in that program". (R.R. at 62, C.R. at 45). The Appellant asks this court that if the statement of the Judge from the bench was not an order, then what was it? Does this court's finding mean that Judge Creuzot's formal statements from the bench have no weight and do not mean what they say? Can the Appellant then simply disregard this order of the court without threat of contempt or probation revocation? Clearly the court intended the Appellant to go into the jail chemical dependency center and do what the court ordered him to do which was "help other poor folks there in that program". No legal basis having been relied upon by this court, the Appellant requests reconsideration.

Due Process Violations

In a motion filed with this court on October 25th, 1999, the Appellant moved to strike the Appellee's brief for the reasons that the Appellee's brief was not timely filed within 30 days after the Appellant's brief was filed. Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure at 38.6 (b). The Appellee's deadline came and went without the Appellee's brief being filed and was in fact filed over four months late. No motion to extend time for the filing of the Appellee's brief was filed with this court pursuant to Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure at 10.5 (b). In the court's wholesale disregard of the Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure this court is essentially allowing the State to thumb it's nose at the applicable procedural rules, and as such, the court has taken itself out of being a neutral and detached court of law. Would the court ever allow the same flagrant disregard of procedural rules in a civil appeal? The Appellant submits this rule breaking would never be tolerated in a civil appeal. The court has essentially assisted the State in the appeal. This is significant because this court relied on the argument set forth by the State in it's brief in most points, and relied on a case submitted by the State in it's brief, i.e. Cotton v. State 893 S.W. 2nd 200 (Tex.App.- Fort Worth 1995, No pet.), in it's summary disposal of Point of Error No. 4.

IV.

Other Procedural Due Process Violations

In the Appellant's brief filed March 15th, 1999, oral argument was requested. On October 6th, 1999, this court denied the Appellant oral argument. On August 25th, 1999, the Appellant filed a Motion to Strike Appellee's Brief for the reasons stated heretofore, and also filed a Motion for Published Opinion. On October 29th, 1999, the court denied the Motion to Strike Appellee's Brief and gave no reason for doing so. The court further denied the Motion for a Published Opinion on the basis that it was premature. The case was submitted to the court on November 5th, 1999, and the case was decided the same day. The Appellant was not allowed an opportunity to cure his "premature" Motion for Published Opinion. This court in it's decision regarding three points of error made only findings of fact and did not rule on whether the factual matters asserted by the Appellant in his brief were allowed by law. For these reasons, the Appellant was denied due process of law as guaranteed him by the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of Texas.

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Appellant prays that this Court grant a rehearing in this case, grant oral argument in this case, strike the brief of the Appellee, publish this Court's opinion in this cause, and for further relief at law and in equity to which the Appellant may show himself justly entitled.
